Clarendon man sentenced on felony charge

One Donley County case was among three heard by the 100th Judicial District Court when it met in Childress County January 14.

District Attorney Luke Inman, along with Assistant District Attorney Harley Caudle, prosecuted the cases for the State of Texas, with the Honorable Judge Dale Rabe presiding.

Donny Lee Fair, 53, from Clarendon, was sentenced to 31 years in prison for the third-degree felony offense of failure to comply with sex offender registration enhanced to a first-degree felony, that occurred in Donley County on July 17, 2022.

Fair was originally placed on probation for the offense on December 14, 2023. On August 22, 2024, the State filed its motion requesting the Court to revoke Fair's probation, alleging 19 violations of his conditions of probation.

Fair was also ordered to pay a $500 fine and $340 court costs.

Humberto Olascoaga, 44 from Childress, was placed on two years' probation for the state jail felony offense of possession of a controlled substance, methamphetamine. Olascoaga was arrested by Childress Police Officer Daniel Hill on September 30, 2024.

Olascoaga pleaded to an information filed by the State on December 12, 2024.

Mulkey expects full house for Josh Weathers concert

It will be a full house Friday night when the Mulkey Theatre hosts Josh Weathers and his band for a night of great music.

Tickets sold quickly for the Fort Worth-based singer and songwriter, who has a large following in West Texas and the Panhandle.

Weathers has spent the last 15 years honing his craft of combining songs of hope with a high energy rock n' soul live show. Weathers sings everything from country to pop to blues to classic rock as well as his own songs.

Weathers has performed everywhere from Hotel Turkey to President Donald Trump's inauguration ball in 2017.

Since a video of him singing "I Will Always Love You" – the classic Dolly Parton hit – went viral a few years ago, it has expanded Josh's reach to a national and global level. Many people have compared him to the likes of John Mellencamp, Springsteen or even Stevie Wonder, but his diehard fan base has found something incredibly unique about his ability to connect with an audience.

For those who have tickets, the doors and concessions will open at 6 p.m. The show will begin at 8 p.m. A cash bar service will be provided by REFZ Sports Bar & Grill, and the dance floor will be also open. No BYOB will be allowed at this performance.

The Mulkey will not have a regular movie this weekend and will be closed Saturday and Sunday. The theatre will re-open Friday, February 7, for its regular hours. See mulkeytheatre.com for listings.

January 6 was landmark date for Democrats

January 6, 2025, was an important day as a joint Congress confirmed the electoral votes certifying that Donald Trump was indeed the newly elected President of the United States.

Much was made this year of the difference between this meeting and the one four years ago where protesters stormed the Capitol to try to stop the certification process. The media and Democrats have praised themselves on their ability to conduct this process in a peaceful manner. House Democratic Leader Hakeem Jeffries has gone as far as saying that his side of the aisle is not "infested" with election deniers. I guess Democrats should be applauded for their efforts, however it seems odd to praise representatives for doing their jobs the correct way.

historically speaking by dr. james finck

I agree that Jan. 6, 2021, was a dark day and should be condemned, but let's not forget that it was the first time in history we saw such actions on confirmation day that has happened 57 other times peacefully; 2021 was the exception not the rule. Historically speaking, it should also be noted that during the 20th century, each certification went off without a hitch, with no member of Congress challenging the vote until the 2000 election when Democrats did so. Democratic congresspeople then followed up that challenge in 2004 and again in 2016. So, yes, Democrats acted honorably when confirming Trump as president this year — as they should — but I am going to hold my applause.

First, it's important to understand the mechanics of how this all works. Article II, Section I, Clause III of the Constitution states that electors need to vote for two people for president (later changed to vote for president and vice president separately) and send the votes to the President of the Senate at which time, "The President of the Senate shall, in the Presence of the Senate and House of Representatives, open all the Certificates, and the Votes shall then be counted."

What is not stated was the day this was supposed to happen. That date, Jan. 6, was determined by the Electoral Count Act of 1887, which was needed after the contested election of 1876. The 1887 Act also created the procedure for an electoral vote to be challenged. To challenge a state's electoral votes at least one representative and one senator must make the challenge. If so, the two houses are to meet in their own chambers and debate for up to two hours. When the time has elapsed, the two houses vote by simple majority if they will accept or not accept the electoral vote.

Now back to the Democratic claim that they accept elections. Since the 1887 Act there have been no challenges to the electoral process until 2000 when George W. Bush narrowly defeated then Vice President Al Gore. During the Jan 6, 2001, congressional meeting, 12 Democratic representatives who were part of the Black Caucus, including current sitting Congresswoman Maxine Waters, challenged Florida's electoral votes. However, as no senator joined the challenge, the objection was not heard, and the count continued certifying Bush as president.

In the following election of 2004, once again Bush defeated the Democratic challenger, John Kerry. As before, at the Jan. 6 congressional meeting, Democrats opposed the election. This time it was Ohio Rep. Stephanie Tubbs Jones who challenged Ohio's electoral votes. The difference this time was she was joined by Sen. Barbara Boxer. This time the two houses separated but the challenge was not upheld in either house. Bush was once again confirmed as president.

In the next two elections Democratic candidate Barack Obama won the day with no challenges during the congressional meeting, but then came 2016. In this election, Donald Trump defeated Hillary Clinton and again during the Jan. 6 meeting, seven congressional Democrats challenged Trump's election including Congresswoman Sheila Jackson Lee from Texas who died in office this past year, current Congresswoman Barbara Lee from California, and current Congressman Jim McGovern of Massachusetts. As in 2001, no senator joined in the challenge and so no debate was made, and Trump was certified as president.

Then came the infamous Jan. 6, 2021, meeting where protestors stormed the Capitol trying to block the count. It should be noted that former Vice President Mike Pence was correct in saying there is nothing in the Constitution or in American law that gives the VP the authority to reject any state's electoral vote. Just as Al Gore did in 2002, Joe Biden did in 2017 and Kamala Harris this past Jan. 6, Pence did the right thing and certified the electoral count that defeated him. In the wake of Jan. 6, 2021, meeting, Congress passed a bipartisan bill in 2022 amending the 1887 Act. The law clarifies that the VP role is ceremonial and that he has no authority to reject any votes. More importantly, instead of just one representative from each house needed for a challenge, now one-fifth of each house is necessary for a challenge.

I want to make this clear: Challenging an election is not even remotely on the same level as storming the Capitol. Jan. 6, 2021, was a dark and depressing day for someone like me who teaches civics for a living. While I am grateful for the Democrats' efforts on this past Jan. 6 for keeping it peaceful, it must be noted that it was the first time since 2000 that Democrats have not challenged a Republican victory in the Electoral College. Maybe we are turning over a new leaf and we will see more civility moving forward in politics. But I will believe that if I see it again in 2028.

Sheriff Enloe tricked some outlaws

If you can catch them without shooting at them, your own chances of survival are greatly improved. In the East Texas town of Woodville, Sheriff George Enloe was a master at using ruses and disguises to apprehend law-breakers during his tenure as sheriff of Tyler County from 1888 to 1898.

Sam Feagin, who had just killed a man, sent word to Sheriff Enloe that if the sheriff was thinking of trying to arrest him, the sheriff should bring his "burying clothes." Learning that Feagin was headed toward the ferry on the Nueces River, Enloe got there first and hid in a nearby skiff. Jumping out just as Feagin was passing by, Enloe got the drop on Feagin and brought him back to Woodville. After serving a short time in jail, Feagin and a fellow prisoner named Ezell succeeded in escaping. Knowing that Feagin's father lived nearby at Hillister, Enloe went to Hillister, hid under the Feagin's house, and learned where to find the younger Feagin by listening to the conversations in the house above. Enloe learned that Feagin and his ally were hiding in an empty house by a nearby mill. Approaching the house, Enloe suddenly found himself facing two guns that were pointing at him. Instantly he began to yell, "Close in

'em boys! Close in there." In the confusion that occurred as the two criminals tried to see who might be coming at them from the rear, Enloe managed to cover them, handcuff them, and return them to jail.

On another occasion, a Mr. Weatherford who had killed two men at a sawmill below Warren, headed for the Louisiana border, but Enloe got to the Sabine ferry first. The next morning Enloe borrowed an old slouch hat and a horse from a Widow West who lived nearby. Riding toward the river, he started rounding up a few stray cattle with seemingly indifference to everything else. Soon another man, who Enloe recognized to be Weatherford, approached from behind him moving toward the ferry. Appearing as just another cattleman, Enloe let the man catch up with him. Then as they were riding side by side, Enloe shoved his gun into Weatherford's face and arrested him. Mob violence and lynchings were common in those days, and Enloe had to use all his wits to prevent the lynching of one of his prisoners. Green Gilder, a former slave, had killed a white woman at Warren, and a mob was forming with intentions of hanging the killer. To protect the prisoner, Enloe sent him under guard into the woods near the house of Enloe's brother-in-law.

Not knowing that the prisoner had been moved, the mob arrived at Enloe's home and demanded the keys to the jail. Nannie Enloe, George's small and dainty wife, defied the mob and threw the keys into a churn of buttermilk. Despite threats from the mob to take Enloe's life, George and Nannie stalled long enough for the guards to get Gilder safely hidden in the woods. George then reached into the buttermilk and gave the keys to the mob.

In several other incidents, Sheriff George Enloe either fooled the law-breakers or persuaded them, through reasoning, to surrender. He took his job seriously, and he was successful in upholding the law. He also lived to an old age.

A stylish hat that stays where it should

My aged Uncle Mort admitted the other day that he feels like it's time for him to re-enter the stock market, and this time, "brimming with confidence."

He swore off trying to out-guess the market in the late 1990s. Mort said he lumped all of his investments into "sweet chariot stocks." I'd never heard of such, but his next sentence clarified: "When I bought 'em, they swung low," he cackled....

He feels certain that wide-brimmed hats for ladies are going to make a comeback after several decades in storage, with owners hoping to live long enough to see them make a comeback. Many after-the-fact comments about the recent presidential inauguration concern Melania Trump's hat, nearly as big as a covered wagon wheel and ample space to carve a turkey.

"Lots of women are on shopping sprees right now, trying to find hats like hers," Mort said. "And they're not finding available at the Dollar Store...."

It appears to me that her hat provided a personal "border wall," allowing "cheek pecks" to reach within two inches of intended targets. I'm not sure how she'd make it flying coach on today's airliners. (Duh, she wouldn't be flying coach.) I guess she could take a middle seat, then buy seats on each side so she could leave her hat on.

The subject reminds me of my ingenious uncle who, as a lad, was usher at the local movie house. This was in the 1920s, before "talkies." All they had were jumpy figures with captions. He said the manager staged a contest among the ushers to see how the problem of women wearing huge hats could somehow be persuaded to remove them so folks behind them could see the screen....

Mort was creative even then. He made a printed sign and placed it at the entrance.

It read: "Ladies over age 40 need not remove their hats." Problem solved; Mort won the contest....

Meanwhile, President 47 took time from signing executive orders to decree that the Gulf of Mexico will henceforth be named "Gulf of America." Such may have occurred to other folks, but I've never heard it mentioned. The decree begs numerous questions. First of all, who named it, and when? How much of the gulf is owned by the USofA? Finally, is it really a gulf?

Cursory research reveals that the gulf had no name until the 1540s, when the idle american by don newbury

most maps and documents referred to it as the "Golfo de Nueva Espanol," from Greek mythology and its Sea of Atlas....

People who know far more than I about such say that it is not really a gulf, but more nearly a sea, in many cases larger than bodies of water that are called oceans and seas.

I dunno, but Mort might want to consider investing in map-making and/or t-shirt lettering. Presses already are rolling....

"Loyalty" was a word frequently heard during the recent inauguration, and likely in all the ones before it. It's a trait to be valued, but few have seen evidence "up close" to match Dr. Charles Wade's recollection. He was pastor of Arlington First Baptist Church for 23 years until 1999, when he became Executive Director of the Baptist General Convention. In Arlington, he succeeded Dr. Henard E. East, on staff there for 53 years. Someone asked him about loyalty to Dr. Wade.

"Let me put it this way," he said. "If Dr. Wade decides to paint the steeple pink, I'll climb up there with him and hold the bucket."....

Dr. Newbury, longtime university president, continues to speak and write. The Idle American, begun in 2003, is one of the longest-running syndicated columns. Contact: 817-447-3872. Email: newbury@speakerdoc.com. Website: www.speakerdoc.com.

Happy birthday to the best mom

This Tuesday is my mom's birthday. So, in honor of her, I would like to write my column to show appreciation for everything she does and has done for me and my family.

My mom spends countless hours working to help provide for my family and I. She puts food on the table and works tirelessly to make special memories with me and my sister. She's taken us on vacations to locations all around the country and world, making memories with my sister and myself that we are sure to never forget. Beyond her dedication to us, she devotes herself to our community. She actively gives back through her place on City Council and by helping with the Mulkey Theatre.

Despite her busy schedule and numerous responsibilities, she always finds time to show up for me and my sister. Whether it be school events, sharing meals, or simply spending time together, she always makes time for us.

My mother's unwavering care and devotion to my family and the community is nothing short of remarkable. She is a role model, and I am grateful for the love she gives me and the sacrifices she makes and has made for me.

My mom is a wonderful mother, a community leader, and an incredible person. She is the best mom I could ever ask for.

Happy Birthday, Mom. I love you and hope you have the best day!

Bronco JV drops two games

The Bronco junior varsity dropped two games last week with losses in Quanah and at home against Wellington.

The Broncos led through one quarter in Quanah holding a five-point lead after the first seven minutes. But the Indians were able to put together a good offense and a strong defense to hold a two-point lead at the break.

The struggles continued for the Broncos after the break, and they fell farther behind. They initiated a good comeback attempt but ran out of time.

Aiden Morris was strong inside and put in 14 points in the loss. Hudson Howard put in six, Dakotah Jameson had four, and Kreed Robinson and Tristen Ybarra put in three each. Markael Anderson and Kendon Hanes helped with two apiece.

The Broncos shot lights out at the free throw line against the Rockets, but turnovers plagued them in their 31-40 loss. They struggled to get the momentum on their side but did not quit fighting against the bigger team. Morris led the way with 10 and Robinson turned in eight, Anderson and Ybarra had four, while Hanes had three and Jameson added two.

The Broncos will finish their season at home on January 31 against Memphis and host Panhandle February 7.

Lady Bronco JV gives Amarillo JV a good run

The Lady Bronco junior varsity has played with limited numbers all season long, but where they lack in numbers, they gain in grit. They recently took on the Amarillo High junior varsity last week and barely came up short in overtime at 36-40.

The Lady Broncos never did back down from the Lady Sandies as they went toe-to-toe with them during regulation. Defensively, the ladies made great stops and caused several turnovers that they were able to capitalize on.

Their offense was led by Cambree Smith who used her speed and inside skills to put in 17 points. She hit one three-pointer and converted four of six from the bonus line. Kinslee Hatley turned into the three-point queen as she nailed three big shots and two regular field goals for 14 points. Addy Havens worked hard under the basket and put in four and Jayla Woodard added two.

The junior varsity will take on Memphis at home January 31 to finish their season.

Gribble hits game winning three against Panhandle

The Colts were able to best the Colts at the buzzer when eighth grader Braxton Gribble threw up a huge shot from outside the three-point line to grab the 37-36 win for the Colts over Panhandle at home last week.

The Colts led by six points after the first quarter of play but allowed the Panthers to come back within three at the break. After recovering the lead in the third, the Colts found themselves down by two points with just seconds on the clock. They played hard the entire time and never slowed down against the good Panhandle team.

But they were determined to get the win and when Gribble shot the ball time was running out. The Colts worked hard to get the win and will ride that momentum finishing their season with only one game remaining.

Gribble had 14 points that included four three-pointers and Brance Bell made a strong showing converting the long shot once and hitting 50 percent from the bonus line to finish with 13. Brentley Gaines and Paxton English put in three each, and Tyler Smith and Jaquan Weatheron finished with two points apiece.

The Colts will finish their season at home against Memphis on February 3 at 5:00 p.m. The Lady Colts will play in Memphis on the February 3.

Broncos have tough week

By Sandy Anderberg
The Clarendon Broncos suffered two close losses last week to Quanah and Wellington. Both games could have gone either way, but they struggled to get the big shots to fall.

The Broncos lost to Quanah 35-52 and were narrowly outdone by Wellington at 48-52.

In the game with Quanah, the Broncos struggled to find the momentum they needed to get past the Indians. Their free throw percentage came in at 43 percent, and they struggled to get their three-point shots to fall.

Kaleb Bolin led the way with 14 and Colton Caudle put in six. Bolin had eight rebounds, had two assists, and two steals. Caudle grabbed 10 rebounds with one assist, three steals, and three blocked shots. Michael Randall finished with five, Caleb Herbert and Mason Sims had four each, and John Weatherton put in two.

They played harder than the 35-43 loss reveals against the Skyrockets at home Friday night. The Broncos struggled to shut down Wellington's top scorer who put in 23 points that included 10 shots from the three-point line.

The Broncos stayed with the Rockets in the first quarter of play, but a slow-shooting second eight minutes spelled trouble for the Broncos as they fell behind by eight points due to a big shot in the last ticks of the half. They were able to outscore their opponent in the second half but could not overtake them on the scoreboard.

Randall turned in 17 points in the game, Sims finished with 16, and Bolin put in 14. Sims had eight rebounds, three assists, one steal, and one block in the game. Randall had six rebounds, four assists, three steals, and one block. Caudle had two points, seven rebounds, three assists, and two blocks, while Bolin grabbed six rebounds, four assists, three steals, and two blocks. Misfortune from the bonus line proved to make a big impact as the Broncos only converted at 18 percent.

Lady Broncos add two big wins; stay 2nd in district play

By Sandy Anderberg
The Lady Broncos had a good week on the court and collected two more district wins. The ladies are currently second behind Panhandle with two more games before post-season play.

The Lady Broncos traveled to Quanah early last week and won big at 54-21. Kenidee Hayes finished with 14 points that included two three-pointers. Gracie Ellis also finished in double figures with 10 with one free throw and three great shots from behind the arc.

The Lady Broncos brought the heat early in the game and jumped out to an early 18-point lead. They were able to build on that lead and the Lady Indians could never get anything started facing Clarendon's solid defense.

Berkley Moore and Kate Shaw finished with six points each, and Kennadie Cummins and Kashlyn Conkin added five points apiece. Madi Benson put in four, and Tandie Cummins and Hayden Elam helped with two points each.

The Lady Rockets added a little more excitement to the 60-41 Lady Bronco victory, but still was no competition for the solid defense and aggressive offense the Lady Broncos played. They were able to use their full-court press to their advantage in the opening eight minutes to set the rhythm for the game and send a hard statement the Wellington squad.

Once again Hayes led the way with 18 points that included two three-pointers and hitting both free throws. Conkin had a great game to finish with 14 hitting two big shots and also nailing both of her shots from the bonus line.

The strength of the Lady Bronco team added a lot of depth to the scoreboard with the Cummins sisters adding eight and seven to the point total and Moore putting in all four of here free shots for six total points. Shaw is always tough inside and put in four from the paint and turning in 66 percent from the charity stripe. Benson and Elam helped with two and one respectively.

PUZZLE SOLUTION

Groundhog Weather Forecaster?

Are you awake, Mr. Groundhog? I don't mean to hound you, but maybe you can predict the winner of the Super Bowl, too? Hello!

Do you think that a groundhog can predict the weather? On February 2, some people will get up very early to watch the groundhog come out of its home. They will stand around the groundhog's hole in the ground and study the sky. As soon as they see the groundhog poke out of its hole they will snap pictures. Who do you think will see the funnier sight...the people or the groundhog?

Read the clues to fill in the crossword puzzle:

- a long winter's nap
- a warm-blooded creature
- another name for the groundhog
- curls into this to sleep
- something people believe in or think will happen without facts or proof
- the groundhog's _____ pumps more slowly when it hibernates
- the groundhog is part of this family
- young are born in this month
- males are about two feet long and weigh about twelve pounds; females are _____
- to tell about an event before it happens
